SUMMARY OF COMMITTEE CHARGE, FINDINGS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

House Joint Resolution 1033 (1990) created the interim Committee on Boards and Commissions and authorized it to examine the following aspects of the state's system of boards and commissions:

- the growth in their numbers;
- the extent of duplication and overlap;
- the method of appointment and membership composition;
- the amount of money that they control;
- the cost of their operations; and
- the extent and impact of their rule- and policy-making activities.

In its deliberations, the committee heard from twenty state departments and the Governor's Office concerning boards and commissions created by state statute, executive order, and department and division heads, as well as those created in response to federal programs. Based on the information gathered, the committee made the findings presented below.

Major Findings

- Colorado does not adequately monitor the growth in the number of boards and commissions. This lack of oversight results in uncontrolled proliferation, duplication of effort, and inefficient use of state resources.
- There are no means at present to obtain comprehensive and accurate financial data regarding how much the state's system of boards and commissions costs to operate or the amount of money controlled by those boards and commissions.
- Though many boards and commissions are overseen by the General Assembly's Joint Legislative Sunrise Sunset Review Committee, 161 do not receive any type of periodic review.
- Of the 247 boards and commissions created by statute, 133 do not have termination dates.

All of these boards have varying degrees of rule- and policy- making authority, as well as financial responsibilities. These conditions result in boards and commissions that continue to exist although they may have completed their duties. This also creates a situation in which boards and commissions continue to function independent of General Assembly and executive department oversight.

Recommendations

Bill 1 - Concerning the Establishment of a System for the Periodic Review of State Boards and Commissions Not Subject to the Legislative Sunset Review Process

The bill has two main provisions: (1) all boards and commissions that do not currently have termination dates have had termination dates added to their authorizing legislation; and (2) a review process is established to be conducted by the appropriate joint standing committees of the House and Senate.

The joint standing committees would be responsible for reviewing a rotating schedule of boards and commissions located in the executive departments for which those standing committees have oversight duties according to the General Assembly's joint rules. Each joint committee would be responsible for continuing necessary boards and for addressing any necessary statutory changes to improve or change the powers, duties, or activities of existing boards. To assist the committees with these duties, the bill instructs the Legislative Council staff to create and maintain a data base on the state's boards and commissions.

Bill 2 - Concerning Existing State Boards and Commissions

The main portion of Bill 2 removes statutory references to boards and commissions that, according to the 20 testifying, are inactive, no longer necessary, or can be consolidated because of the similarity of their duties. One exception is the termination of the state Land Use Commission. Its termination was recommended by the committee because its duties are superseded by local land use planning responsibilities. The bill also adds language to the statute specifying that, after review of advisory committees by the Sunrise Sunset Committee, new termination dates be added to such advisory committees. (The current practice is to remove the termination date altogether.)

Bill 3 - Concerning Statutory Language Required for the Creation of Boards and Commissions in State Government

Bill 3 requires that when a board or commission is proposed, certain information about the board's structure, powers, and duties be explicitly stated in statute. Required information about a board or commission would include the number of members, appointing authority, requirements for Senate confirmation, termination date, per diem and expenses (if any), powers and duties, staffing, funding, and reporting requirements.

BACKGROUND

Existing boards and commissions. Information supplied by departmental testimony and gathered from a review of state statutes revealed that there are 418 distinct boards and commissions in state government (Appendix A). This number includes those created by the various executive departments (or the division heads within those departments), state statutes, executive orders, and those established in response to federal programs or mandates. The number does not include instances where the same type of board is established in various regions of the state (e.g., 22 judicial nominating district commissions). The state's boards and commissions can be categorized as follows:

- 247 are statutorily created (59.2 percent);
- 85 are created by executive orders or department or division heads (20.1 percent);
- 41 are required for participation in federal programs or are mandated by federal legislation (9.8 percent);
- 38 represent participation in various interstate compacts or are governing boards of state-level independent governmental corporations (9.1 percent); and
- 8 are required by the state constitution (1.9 percent).

Existing Oversight Mechanisms

The agencies discussed below have various roles in the creation and monitoring of Colorado's system of boards and commissions.

Sunrise Sunset Committee. The Joint Legislative Sunrise Sunset Review Committee reviews the boards and commissions in the Department of Regulatory Agencies, certain regulatory functions in other departments, and certain advisory committees (section 2-3-1201, et seq., C.R.S.). The primary purpose of the review is to terminate ("sunset") or modify the statutory powers and functions of the agency, board, commission, or advisory committee that are not necessary for public protection. The committee may introduce legislation during the next legislative session toward those ends.

Governor's Office of Boards and Commissions. The Governor appoints members to boards and commissions which are usually created in one of two ways, by executive order or by statute. The Governor's Office of Boards and Commissions (OBC) assists the Governor in identifying and selecting potential appointees. In the case of boards created by statute, the office also assists the Governor in complying with the statutory requirements for the board's composition (geographical, political, etc.) or the expertise mandated for his appointments.

According to Fran LeDuke, Director, OBC, once appointments have been made, the office does not review the activities of the boards nor does it monitor expenditures or similar functions. The office is currently developing a computerized data base to keep track of all the boards to which the Governor makes appointments.

State Auditor's Office. State statute directs the State Auditor to perform financial audits of state departments at least once every two years. Larger departments are usually reviewed every year. The review of the operations of boards and commissions is conducted within a larger review of the department's overall accounting and control procedures. Closer scrutiny of boards and commissions is also dependent on the size, duties, and responsibilities of the board or commission in question. The Legislative Audit Committee may authorize the auditor to review specific programs outside of the normal two-year cycle. The Governor and other state legislators may also request such reviews as long as such requests are directed through and approved by the audit committee.

Joint Budget Committee. Review of boards and commissions by the Joint Budget Committee (JBC) is conducted in the context of the annual examination and approval of departmental budgets. The evaluations are usually fiscal in nature. Whether boards are duplicative or necessary in terms of their responsibilities is not normally reviewed. Whether a particular board or commission is examined depends on: (1) the size or significance of the expenditures and activities (e.g., Colorado Commission on Higher Education); and (2) the structure of the department's budget, for example, whether there is a specific line item for the board (e.g., Division of Registration within the Department of Regulatory Agencies). The expenditures or fiscal activities of the majority of the state's boards and commissions are generally not sufficient to warrant review by the JBC.

Office of Legislative Legal Services. Through the operations of the Committee on Legal Services, the Office of Legislative Legal Services (OLLS) conducts an annual review of new rules and regulations promulgated by state agencies. If the boards and commissions within those agencies have rule-making authority, those rules are also included in the review process. Rules and regulations are examined for their conformance with the statutory authority of the agency, board, or commission. OLLS has performed this review function since 1976 (section 24-4-103 (8) (d), C.R.S.). According to OLLS staff, the process entails examining 9,000 - 11,000 pages of rules and holding seven to nine meetings of the Committee on Legal Services each year.

Office of Regulatory Reform. The Office of Regulatory Reform (ORR), Department of Regulatory Agencies, is statutorily charged with annually examining the economic impact of the rules and regulations established by state agencies (section 24-34-904, C.R.S.). The Office of Regulatory Reform has the authority to modify or eliminate rules and regulations that are duplicative or unnecessarily burdensome on private business. According to Greg Romberg, ORR's Director, the office reviews between 250 and 300 rules each year.

Discussion of Committee Recommendations

Colorado has a large number and a wide variety of boards and commissions, many of which do not have termination dates or are not subject to periodic review. In addition, 22 new boards were created by the General Assembly during the 1990 session. The opinion was voiced that boards initially created as advisory and temporary have a tendency to request permanent status and funding from the General Assembly to continue their activities. Through such changes, they may become advocates for programs and specific groups, creating constituent groups where none existed previously.

Colorado's current system of boards and commissions creates the potential for overlap, duplication, and the making of rules and policy out of view of the General Assembly. This situation exposes a need for the General Assembly to create some means by which to monitor the creation and activities of boards and commissions. In response, the committee developed Bill 1 which:

- (1) places termination dates on all existing boards and commissions that do not have such dates (except those created by the state constitution and executive order, and those related to federal programs and mandates); and
- (2) creates an annual review process by the appropriate joint standing committee.

At present, the joint rules of the General Assembly assign oversight of specific executive branch agencies to each committee of reference (Joint Rule 25). These oversight duties provide the proper forum in which to review the boards with newly added termination dates under Bill 1. Under the process established in the bill, the joint committees of reference would review a portion of the boards located within their oversight departments (e.g., the State Board of Health would be reviewed by a Joint House and Senate Committee on Health, Environment, Welfare, and Institutions).¹ Issues examined by the joint committees would include board activities performed during the previous year and the cost of those activities, the number of meetings held, board member attendance, and the amount of money that the board controls. Such reviews would also provide an opportunity for public comment on the activities of boards and commissions.

1 The activities of the Governor's Office are not assigned to a legislative committee of reference. However, there are several statutory boards assigned to the Governor's Office. Bill 1 provides that these boards, as well as those in the Legislative Department, are to be assigned pursuant to the joint rules of the General Assembly.

After such hearings, each joint committee would be responsible for recommending legislation that would:

- continue those boards and commissions that, in the opinion of the joint committee, continue to serve a useful function;
- allow inactive or duplicative committees to sunset; and
- address any necessary statutory changes to improve or change the powers, duties, or activities of existing boards and commissions.

The committees could meet at any time to discharge this responsibility. Bill 3 provides an example of the type of product that this new review process could recommend.

A "wind-up" period of six months is specified for those boards and commissions that are terminated by the joint standing committees, and the bill also creates an on-going information collection function within Legislative Council staff to monitor the state's boards and commissions. This data base would facilitate the oversight duties of the joint standing committees.

Concern expressed about proposal. Due to the number of bills introduced and the current sequence of legislative deadlines, the General Assembly's 120-day session may not allow sufficient time for the joint committees of reference to adequately review the executive departments under their purview, much less the boards and commissions within those departments. Bill 1 would add to this workload, and calls into question whether the proper level of scrutiny can be maintained.

Initially, thought was given to conducting some of these review activities during the legislative interim in order to allow more time. However, possible conflicts with the meeting schedules of other interim committees and the cost of holding joint meetings during the interim, especially relative to the benefits attained, persuaded the interim committee to allow the joint committees of reference to meet at their convenience during the session.

Fiscal Activities of Boards and Commissions

In most cases, the actual costs of the activities of a board or commission are absorbed by department operating budgets and are not explicitly reflected in current budget procedures. Even though the members of an existing or proposed board may not receive compensation or hire staff, the departments in which they are located usually provide some support services (e.g., arranging meetings and mailing notifications). In cases where local officials are appointed, such costs would be absorbed by local governments.

Of particular concern was the lack of accurate and consistent financial information regarding: (1) the amount of resources used to support the activities of the boards and commissions; and (2) the amount of money controlled by those boards and commissions. In order to examine these costs, budget information was requested for all such entities from the appropriate executive departments and the Governor's Office. The results of those efforts are presented in Appendix B.

Each department was sent a request form containing the headings found in Appendix B and was asked to report board financial activities in the appropriate column. Subsequent committee staff discussions with department representatives concerning the responses received revealed that the headings were subject to a wide variety of interpretations. Difficulties were encountered because:

- (1) with the exception of the Department of Regulatory Agencies and the Department of Agriculture, such information had never been requested (or required) from the departments before;
- (2) different definitions were used by different departments for items under the same column headings (e.g., "Direct Hire," and whether moneys represented "Cash Funds" or "General Funds"); and
- (3) in certain instances, boards and their activities did not easily fit into the categories provided.

Totals reported for board operating costs may be inflated because, in some instances, departments reported the size of an entire regulatory program overseen by a board rather than the costs associated exclusively with operating the board. Because of these factors, the resulting figures in Appendix B should be viewed with caution.

In order to get a better idea of the cost of the state's boards and commissions, this information collection process should be continued. The quality of the information can be improved by creating a process in which the collection and monitoring of such information is conducted annually. The state's annual budget preparation process provides the most convenient means to gather and report that information. The committee endorsed a budget form on which each department would report the program budgets that each board controls as well as their operating expenses (Appendix C).²

In order to implement this process, the committee sent letters to the Office of State Planning and Budgeting and the Joint Budget Committee requesting that the collection of this information be included in the existing departmental budget preparation process. The committee anticipates that this information would be included in the "Long Bill". This would provide another means by which the General Assembly could monitor the cost-effectiveness of the state's boards and commissions.

Public benefits of boards and commissions. In the course of gathering its financial information on existing boards and commissions, committee staff also sought estimates from each department of the cash and in-kind value of the services provided by the boards and commissions within the departments. Although the estimates are for the most part subjective³, they provide another perspective on the role that boards and commissions play in state government. During testimony, many department representatives noted that boards and commissions allow citizen input on government programs and provide valuable perspectives on programs from outside the departments. Committee discussion also noted that the part-time nature of the Colorado General Assembly (120-day session) may even increase the need for boards and commissions to assist in implementing state policy.

Uniform Standards for Boards and Commissions

The committee's examination of the current system of boards and commissions revealed incomplete information as well as inconsistencies among boards with similar powers and duties. Bill 3 requires that the language creating a board contain specific information, such as the board's department location, number of members, appointing authority, termination date, per diem and expenses, staffing, funding, rulemaking or advisory duties, and reporting requirements.

Though committee discussion acknowledged that this information is normally included in statute, it also noted occasions when oversight boards are created without sufficient consideration of the most appropriate size, powers, department location, reporting requirements, termination date, and similar issues. Placing requirements in statute for such information would provide additional incentives for careful consideration of these issues.

Discussion of category proposal. The committee considered placing all statutory boards and commissions in various categories based on their relative powers, rulemaking authority, the impact of their policy decisions, and their financial responsibilities. A system of categories would create a framework into which existing and future boards and commissions could be placed and create a common means to determine the level of per diem, reporting requirements, and the extent and type of oversight to which the board's activities are subject. This approach would also tend to simplify statutory references to boards and commissions. By identifying which category a given board was assigned to, the board's powers and duties and other elements such as per diem would be automatically specified. However, the size and complexity of the task persuaded the committee not to make recommendations in this area.

To initiate the categories would have involved a minimum of 270 boards⁴ that would have a majority of their statutory language changed. Within those 270 statutory references, decisions would have to be made for each board regarding whether such responsibilities as its rulemaking authority or financial powers warranted more or less scrutiny. For example, one board may be issuing rules that impact medical doctors while another may have rulemaking authority over pesticide applicators. While the rules issued are equally important to each industry, the impact would differ based on the size and nature of the industry. Similar arguments can be made about degrees of financial responsibilities (e.g., one board may only have fee-setting authority while another allocates a budget of several million dollars). Achieving consensus in these areas would be difficult and time-consuming because the eventual placement of a board in a category may be viewed as arbitrary and subjective, especially if category changes increase the level of oversight or decrease the amount that board members are paid.

Lastly, at present the General Assembly's most comprehensive review process is that conducted by the Joint Legislative Sunrise Sunset Review Committee. However, creating a hierarchy of boards and commissions may necessitate creating a more stringent or in-depth review process. The Public Utilities Commission can be considered one of the largest boards within the Sunrise Sunset Committee's purview ($4.8 million cash fund appropriation in FY 1990-91). Contrast that with the responsibilities of the Colorado Highway Commission which has a FY 1990-91 budget in excess of $435 million and which is not subject to periodic review. In the context of establishing a hierarchy of boards and commissions, such differences in the level of responsibilities argues for the creation of a higher level of scrutiny than that conducted by the Sunrise Sunset Committee.

After considering these issues and the extent of changes required, the committee examined the provisions of Bills 2 and 3 and decided that the provisions in those bills would achieve the same ends as the categorization of all boards and commissions with much less effort.

4 Excludes constitutionally-created boards, interstate compacts, governing boards of independent authorities, boards created by executive order, and boards created in response to federal legislation.

Other Concerns Expressed by the Committee

Fiscal analysis. During the legislative process, changes to existing boards are proposed (e.g., altering the size) or new boards are added through legislation. In many instances, such changes alter the fiscal impact of a bill by causing further drains on department operating budgets. However, such changes are not often reflected in the fiscal analyses of the bill. Although the committee did not make specific recommendations to alter the current fiscal note process, several members expressed the desire for that process to be more sensitive to the impact of proposed changes to existing boards and to the potential cost of new boards. Such fiscal analyses should contain a projection of expense reimbursements to members and per diem payments, as well as the cost of executive agency staff time, printing costs, and other support functions.

Rulemaking. Committee members also expressed concern about the impact of the rulemaking activities of the state's boards and commissions. Testimony noted that the rules and regulations created by boards and commissions are subject to the same criteria as those created by all state agencies.

- The General Assembly's Committee on Legal Services, with the assistance of the Office of Legislative Legal Services, annually reviews rules and regulations created by all state agencies, including boards and commissions. This review is concerned with whether the rules created are within the authority of the agency as set forth in statute.
- The Office of Regulatory Reform is charged with reviewing rules and regulations that may be unnecessary or overly burdensome on private business. Provisions were also recently added to statute that allow anyone concerned with a proposed rule to request that a regulatory analysis be performed to determine the impact of the rule on the affected industry or agency (House Bill 1069, 1987).
- Though the majority of the activities of the Sunrise Sunset Committee are concerned with occupational licensing, the committee also examines rules and regulations created by the boards under its purview. The committee may repeal such rules that the committee views as unnecessary.

At various points in its discussions, the committee considered requiring the use of such standards as "economic reasonableness" and "technological feasibility" when boards and commissions are proposing new rules and regulations. The committee also considered mandating a dollar-specific point (e.g., $1 million) at which the impact of a proposed rule or regulation would be subject to additional review. This extra step would require that cost/benefit analyses of proposed rules and regulations be prepared by an agency separate from that which houses the board or commission proposing the rule (e.g., State Auditor's Office, Legislative Council staff, Office of State Planning and Budgeting). The committee did not, however, make any specific legislative recommendations in this area.

Source: Legislative Council staff. State statutes were searched through the state's General Government Computing Center. Boards and commissions created by executive order were provided by the Office of the Governor. Department testimony to the committee provided additional information on boards and commissions created by department heads and division directors.

The number in parenthesis next to a board entry denotes the total number of that type of board. The total number of boards at the end of this list does not count such multiples.

* - established by local governments pursuant to state statute.

- 1/ Entries beginning with B or D and followed by numbers refer to Governor's executive orders. Where a statutory cite is listed, the board was created by statute.
"F" denotes boards and commissions created in response to federal legislation and mandates.
"O" denotes boards and commission created by departments or divisions.
- 2/ Number of members on the board or commission. N - Not specified, left to the discretion of the appointing authority, or determined by such things as the number of agencies or parties involved in a particular issue. In some instances, statute or the executive order specifies that a range or maximum number of board members is specified. In such cases, the maximum figure was used.
- 3/ G - Governor; D - Executive Director (state board in the case of the Department of Health, commissioner in the case of the Department of Agriculture);
S - some or all members specified in statute, or expertise of appointees or other criteria is specified;
L - General Assembly leadership appoints some or all of the members; E - elected; O - other; N - not specified.
- 4/ Subject to review by the Joint Legislative Sunrise-Sunset Review Committee.
Advisory committees subject to this review process are reviewed only once.
- 5/ P - per diem, A - actual and necessary expenses, O - other, T - travel expenses only.
N - statute states that members are to receive no compensation. Where no letter appears in this column, the statute does not mention compensation. In most instance where legislative members are appointed, they are reimbursed as if attending interim committee meetings ($99 per day plus expenses).
- 6/ Reporting requirements refer to statutory mandates that one or more reports be filed with the Governor and/or the General Assembly.
- 7/ "Legal" -- board or commission has the power to sue or issue subpoenas or cease and desist orders.
"Fiscal" -- board or commission: (1) has access to a source of revenue, (2) may set fees, (3) receives appropriations from the General Assembly, or (4) has some type of fiduciary responsibilities.
- 8/ Statute specifically states that the board or commission has the power to establish additional advisory committees.
- 9/ Board or commission has explicit statutory authority to hire staff separate and apart from administrative assistance provided by the department in which the board or commission is located. In the instance of the State Parole Board, the board has the power to contract with attorneys to act as administrative law judges.

Other entries represent the actual number of meetings as reported to the interim committee by department representatives. "New" -- created during 1990 legislative session.
- 11/ DORA supervises the activities of the state's professional licensing boards, including approving the rules and regulations set by those boards. - 1/ Departments were asked to list program budgets for those boards, commissions, and committees which have decision making powers over the expenditure of funds (or have oversight of a regulatory program).
- 2/ "Direct Hire" are staff persons hired under the authority of the statute creating the board/commission to carry out the program which the board/commission oversees. The program would be ongoing in the absence of the board/commission. The budget for Direct Hire is also a part of the Related Program Budget.
- 3/ "Other" includes such costs as printing, postage, and the cost of outside auditing of programs.
- 4/ Departments were asked to determine how much the services of volunteer members of boards, commissions, and committees would cost if the department had to pay for those services. Each department determined its own method of applying a dollar value to the services of volunteer members. Most departments, however, calculated the services as "consultants fees" valued at $50 or less per hour for attendance at all meetings during the fiscal year.
- 5/ The members of this board, commission, or committee are all state or local government employees; therefore, no volunteer, in-kind benefits have been calculated.

- 6/ All Department of Law boards and commissions are either advisory or policy making. According to the department, the functions of advisory bodies cannot be performed by paid staff or consultants. The policy-making functions of the Commission on Consumer Credit could be transferred to existing regulatory staff--the UCCC administrator--at no extra cost.
- 7/ These boards, commissions, and committees are statutorily authorized, but the statutes are permissive. The entities are not presently constituted, but the relevant departments want the authority to create the board, commission, or committee if the need arises.
- 8/ Members of these groups are representatives of certain private sectors and have rulemaking authority. Their duties would not be replaced by contractors or state employees because they represent a specific sector of the public for rulemaking purposes. Therefore, no benefits amount has been listed.
- 9/ Benefits were reported as other than dollar amounts.
- 10/ Committees in the Secretary of State's office consist of users of the office. Information and advice gathered from these members as to user needs could only be obtained from people who actually use the services of the office on a day-to-day basis.
- 11/ All boards and commissions within the Department of Regulatory Agencies have direct hire staffs to run the regulatory programs. The costs of running the programs, other than travel for board members, are included in the "direct hire" amount. The Grievance Board does not have a separate staff, as the staff are allocated to the separate boards that the Grievance Board assists.

1 Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Colorado:

2 SECTION 1. Title 24, Colorado Revised Statutes, 1988
3 Repl. Vol., as amended, is amended BY THE ADDITION OF A NEW
4 ARTICLE to read:

5 ARTICLE 3.7

6 Legislative Review of State Boards and Commissions

7 24-3.7-101. General assembly review of state boards and 8 commissions - termination - continuation. (1) The general
9 assembly hereby finds and declares that there currently exists
10 a substantial number of boards and commissions in state
11 government and that the number continues to increase; that 12 many state boards and commissions are not subject to the 13 legislative sunset review process; that the lack of 14 legislative supervision may result in the existence of boards
15 and commissions which have outlived their usefulness yet
16 remain on the statutes through oversight or neglect and which 17 have failed to perform the functions for which they were 18 created; and that such systematic review of state boards and 19 commissions would enable the general assembly to evaluate the 20 need for the continued existence of existing and future state
21 boards and commissions.

22 (2) (a) State boards and commissions which are not
23 subject to the provisions of part 12 of article 3 of title 2,
24 C.R.S., or section 24-34-104 shall terminate according to the

1 termination schedule outlined in subsection (9) of this
2 section.

3 (b) Upon termination, each state board or commission
4 shall continue in existence until December 31 of the year in
5 which such termination occurred for the purpose of winding up
6 affairs. During the wind-up period, termination shall not
7 reduce or otherwise limit the powers or authority of each
8 respective board or commission. After said wind-up period,
9 each board or commission shall cease all activities.

10 (3) The life of any board or commission scheduled for 11 termination pursuant to the provisions of this section may be 12 continued by the general assembly for periods not to exceed 13 ten years. Any board or commission created or reestablished
14 on or after July 1, 1991, which is not subject to the 15 provisions of part 12 of article 3 of title 2, C.R.S., or 16 section 24-34-104 shall have a life not to exceed six years,
17 and the statutory authorization for the board or commission
18 shall contain a corresponding termination provision. Such 19 newly created or reestablished boards and commissions shall be 20 subject to the provisions of this section.

21 (4) (a) In accordance with the joint rules of the senate
22 and the house of representatives, joint committees of 23 reference shall review during each regular session all boards
24 and commissions which are:

25 (I) (A) Within the principal departments of state
26 government for which each joint committee of reference has

1 oversight responsibilities; or

2 (B) Within the office of the governor; or

3 (C) Within the legislative department; and

4 (II) Scheduled to automatically terminate during the 5 next succeeding interim pursuant to the provisions of this
6 section.

7 (b) The joint rules of the senate and the house of 8 representatives shall specify which joint committee or 9 committees of reference shall review any boards and 10 commissions within the office of the governor or within the 11 legislative department.

12 (5) The powers, duties, and functions of each board and 13 commission shall be reviewed by the appropriate joint
14 committee of reference in order to evaluate the public need
15 for continuance of such board or commission and whether the 16 public need would be better served by the elimination,
17 reassignment, or expansion of said powers, duties, and 18 functions.

19 (6) (a) (I) For purposes of review pursuant to 20 subsection (5) of this section, each board and commission
21 shall submit the following information to the appropriate
22 joint committee of reference:

23 (A) The names of the current members of the board or 24 commission;

25 (B) All revenues and all expenditures of the board or
26 commission, including but not limited to expenses, per diem

1 paid to members, and any travel expenses;

2 (C) The dates all meetings of the board or commission
3 were held and the number of members attending the meetings;

4 (D) A listing of all powers, duties, and functions of 5 the board or commission;

6 (E) The reasons why the board or commission should be 7 continued; and

8 (F) Any additional information which the joint committee
9 of reference deems necessary and appropriate.

10 (II) All information required by subparagraph (I) of 11 this paragraph (a) shall be for the then current fiscal year
12 as well as the prior fiscal year and shall be submitted to the 13 appropriate joint committee of reference before July 1 of the 14 year preceding the year in which the board or commission is 15 scheduled for termination.

16 (b) The joint committees of reference shall conduct a
17 hearing for each board and commission that submits the 18 information required by paragraph (a) of this subsection (6).

19 (7) This section shall not cause the dismissal of any
20 claim or right of a person through or against any such board
21 or commission or any claim or right of a board or commission
22 which has ceased its activities pursuant to this section which 23 is or may be subject to litigation. Any person may pursue
24 said claim or right through or against the department in which
25 such board or commission is located, and said claim or right
26 of a board or commission which has ceased its activities shall

1 be assumed by the specific department. Nothing in this
2 section shall interfere with the general assembly otherwise
3 considering legislation on any state board or commission or 4 similar body.

5 (8) When a state board or commission is terminated
6 pursuant to the provisions of this section and the general
7 assembly reestablishes the state board or commission during 8 the wind-up period with substantially the same powers, duties,
9 and functions, the board or commission shall be deemed to have 10 been continued.

11 (9) The following dates are the dates for which the 12 statutory authorization for the designated boards and 13 commissions is scheduled for termination:

14 (a) July 1, 1992:

15 (I) The special funds board created pursuant to section
16 8-44-206 (2), C.R.S.;

17 (II) The special committee referred to in section
18 10-4-802, C.R.S., which determines the preconditions necessary
19 for the creation of the medical liability extraordinary loss
20 fund;

21 (III) The group specified in section 19-2-211 (1),
22 C.R.S., to develop a common assessment instrument and common
23 criteria for evaluating juveniles in custody;

24 (IV) The state council on the arts and humanities
25 created pursuant to article 9 of title 23, C.R.S.;

26 (V) The trustees of the state colleges in Colorado

1 created pursuant to article 50 of title 23, C.R.S.;

2 (VI) The state housing board created pursuant to section

14 to any such entire issue remaining unsold in the hands of the 15 board of directors in the same manner as such issue was 16 authorized and upon an affirmative vote of the majority of the 17 total voting strength of the district, whereupon the board of 18 directors shall cancel or destroy said bonds and shall enter 19 that fact, reciting the numbers of such bonds so canceled or

8 the filing, such lands shall be free and clear from any and 9 all liens, levies, and assessments of such bonded indebtedness
10 for which such payment was made; except that, in the case of a
11 contract with the United States, the provisions of this
12 section shall not apply, but, in such case, the real property
13 of the district shall be and remain liable to be assessed for 14 all payments provided for in such contract with the United 15 States until the obligations under such contract have been

17 SECTION 32. 37-42-134 (1) and (2), Colorado Revised
18 Statutes, 1990 Repl. Vol., are amended to read:

19 37-42-134. Inclusion of land in district.
20 (1) Landowners representing a majority of the acreage of any 21 tracts of land susceptible of irrigation from the system of 22 any irrigation district already organized may present their 23 petition to the board of directors of such irrigation
24 district, praying that such lands be included within the 25 district. Such petition shall describe each tract of land
26 sought to be included within such district and give the name

1 of the owner thereof. It shall be accompanied by a map
2 prepared by a competent civil engineer, showing the proposed
3 method of irrigation of the land involved and the 4 susceptibility of its irrigation from the system of such
5 district. ~~A copy of such petition and map shall also be filed~~
6 ~~with the irrigation district commission.~~ Upon the filing of 7 such petition, it is the duty of the secretary of such 8 district to cause notice thereof to be published, at the 11 general circulation within such district and to set said

12 petition down for hearing before the board at its next regular 13 meeting after the last of such publications.

14 (2) At the date set for hearing, such board shall 15 proceed to hear said petition and any objections thereto that 16 have been offered in writing ~~by the irrigation district~~
17 ~~commission,~~ by any landowner of the district or other 18 interested person and may allow or reject said petition in 19 whole or in part in its discretion. As a condition precedent
20 to the granting of such petition, the board of directors shall 21 require the payment into the bond fund of such amount, as 22 nearly as the same can be estimated, as such land as is 23 included by its order would have been assessed on account of 24 such fund if it had been in such district from the date of its 25 organization and, in addition, may require such further
26 payments as it considers just and equitable to be paid into

1 the general fund; but, in case any unentered public land is so
2 included within any irrigation district, such payment shall be
