EIGHTH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE
COLORADO TAX COMMISSION
TO THE
GOVERNOR, TREASURER AND LEGISLATURE.

In keeping with the high cost of everything throughout the world the cost of all governmental functions throughout Colorado has materially increased in 1919. From the State down through the Counties, Cities and Towns to the smallest School District, have come, almost without exception, increased tax levies. Not only has the cost of service, labor, material and supplies advanced, but the people are demanding more and more of those things for which taxes are levied and especially in the way of schools and roads. Unfortunately for those who pay taxes on the full cash value of their properties, the additional increase of valuations in the State have not kept pace with the ever-increasing taxes. There are several reasons to account in part for this fact.

In the first place, Colorado did not share, to any great extent, in the war time prosperities which came to some States. Our agricultural and stock interests enjoyed a large measure of added prosperity, but our metalliferous mining interests were necessarily depressed and our manufacturing interests are as yet negligible. Colorado more than met every demand made upon her, financial and otherwise, but received little material return.

In the second place Colorado, being under the system known as the "general property tax," and having no income tax or classified property tax, has about reached the limit of her assessed valuation under present conditions except as that shall vary from time to time and have perhaps a normal growth.

With the State levy within half a mill of the Constitutional limitation and with County and Municipal levies as high as seventy-five mills, and forty and fifty mill levies becoming frequent, the burden on real property, which bears the brunt of taxation in our system, is becoming well nigh intolerable. It would seem that some serious thought should be given to the investigation of what other sources of revenue exist.

In his inaugural message to the Twenty-second General Assembly on January 14, 1919, Governor Shoup recognized this necessity, when he said:

“It is recommended that you investigate fully and very carefully the subject of taxation in order to determine whether the tax burden can be more justly and equitably distributed.”

And, last but not least, the limitations placed upon the work of this Commission by the inadequate appropriations made by the Legislature and the impossibility of retaining even the small number of employees allowed at the meagre salaries granted is a very direct and substantial cause of the failure of the aggregate assessed valuation to increase more rapidly. Hidden and increased values do not come voluntarily to the surface, but must be sought for and forced out. Adequate machinery is not provided for the work at hand and until it is, the work of this Commission will be slow and retarded.

For the proper enforcement of revenue laws, there must be strong moral support from the officials and tax payers, and sufficient money to employ and maintain a well organized force of aggressive field deputies and agents of character, ability and energy.

The stormy conflicts of the early days of this Commission seem to have passed and it is working in almost complete harmony and co-operation with public officials throughout the State and with a strong public sentiment in its favor steadily increasing. But the funds to properly carry on its work are lacking. Governor Gunter, in his message as outgoing Governor, to the Twenty-second General Assembly, on January 3, 1919, recognized this when he said:

“Most important powers are given to such commissions as the Tax, the Industrial and the Utilities Commissions. The Tax Commission, for example, is fundamental in the entire revenue system of the State. The State simply could not be operated except through the aid of such bodies. They ought to have been created, they cannot operate efficiently without adequate appropriations.”

STATE VALUATION

Notwithstanding the serious handicaps under which the Commission has been working, the aggregate valuation of the State certified to the State Board of Equalization this year was $1,495,044,025, as against $1,422,113,275 in 1918, an increase $72,930,750. This would undoubtedly have been considerably larger if we had had the means necessary for the proper supervision of local work in sixty-three counties.

Our experience with one county last year, which was practically reassessed by our field force and increased in value over $7,500,000, and our experience with another county this year to which particular attention was directed with an attendant increase in value of $10,751,617, prove conclusively what could be done by a general overhauling of a number of other counties which are badly in need of re-assessment.

CONFERENCE OF COUNTY ASSESSORS.

The failure of the Legislature to pass the short appropriation bill until March 19, 1919, made it impossible this year to hold the usual annual conference of County Assessors with the Tax Commission. It is very desirable that this conference should be held in January, or at least before the work of local assessing begins. It is hard to over-estimate the value of these conferences, both to the Commission and the Assessors, and consequently to the State. This year there were twenty-three newly elected assessors, most of whom had had no experience in the work and they depend upon the annual conference for much enlightenment as to methods, values and equalization. It is to be hoped that the expense of holding this conference can be arranged for on a permanent basis.

District conferences were held in several parts of the State, all of which were attended by some member of the Commission. These conferences also are of great value and are encouraged and arranged for by the Commission.

COUNTY INVESTIGATIONS

During the year thirty-five counties were visited by some member of the Tax Commission and thirty by Investigators. Fifty-three of the sixty-three counties were visited by either members or employees of the Commission, and some of them several times.

The same reason which prevented the Assessor's Conference, the delayed short appropriation bill, made it impossible to keep the Investigators on the road during the months of January, February and March, and much valuable time was lost in directing the work of newly elected and inexperienced assessors.

On April 1st, one of our two Investigators resigned on account of insufficient salary. The appointment of the only available man known to the Commission to fill this vacancy, was approved by the Civil Service Commission and the Governor, but did not meet with the approval of the State Treasurer. As a consequence, the Commission has had but one Investigator during the most important eight months in the year and the vacancy still exists.

COURT DECISIONS

The most important litigation decided during the year, as affecting this Commission's work, was the finding early in the year of the Supreme Court in the case of Anderson vs. the Board of County Commissioners of Douglas County, which threw back the classification of Counties to the law of 1905. The Legislature of 1917 had reclassified counties and provided for a much-needed increase in many assessors' salaries. The Anderson case reduced the salaries of the Assessors of twenty-four counties in sums ranging from $600 to $1,000 a year. In several of the principal counties of the State, the salaries were reduced to $1,000, or less than the deputies were receiving. This naturally created much dissatisfaction among the assessors affected and tended to demoralize the work of local assessment. Several assessors had decided to resign, but fortunately for them and for our work, the Supreme Court, on rehearing, has reversed itself.

LEGISLATION

There was presented to the Twenty-second General Assembly, eight bills proposing to carry into effect some of the recommendations made by this Commission in its last annual report respecting changes and alterations in our revenue laws. These bills were the result of the experience of this Commission and much study by it and others interested. They had been approved by the Standing Committee of the Assessors' Conference. There was no definitely defined opposition to any of them in the Legislature, but they all failed of passage by reason of the pressure of other work.

The Commission repeats its recommendations for the ensuing Legislature. Reference to our Seventh Annual Report will show these recommendations in detail.

MINING TAX LAW

This Commission has consistently and persistently urged that metalliferous mining property should be assessed at its actual value and not practically subsidized as at present under existing laws. It is interesting to note in this connection the movement which has recently been inaugurated by the Colorado State Association of County Commissioners to amend this law by an initiated measure if necessary.

CONSOLIDATION OF TAX DEPARTMENTS

A tendency to consolidate certain departments of the State Government and to eliminate others is manifest. If this is ever done, the consolidation of the Inheritance Tax Department of the Attorney General's office with and under the supervision of this Commission should be seriously considered. There are many reasons making for economy and efficiency, why the two departments should be under one head, and there are none that we know of why this should not be done.

REVENUE LAWS

Scarcely a week passes throughout the year that this Commission is not in receipt of requests from State, County, and City officers, individuals and organizations, not only in Colorado but from all parts of the United States, for copies of our laws relating to revenue and taxation. We have to make the stereotyped reply in every instance, that they are not available in separate form. Arrangements should certainly be made for a compilation and printing in pamphlet form of the various statutes which are scattered throughout our Session Laws and which constitute our revenue system.

STATE BOARD OF EQUALIZATION

The valuations certified to the State Board of Equalization by this Commission in October were sustained, with three exceptions. Two corporations were reduced and one increased.
