Foster Parent Services Survey Report

2004

The Administrative Review Division (ARD) conducted a satisfaction survey (see Appendix A for a copy of the Foster Parent Services Survey) to determine if ARD is meeting Federal goals and see if reviews continue to be worthwhile to the foster parent participants. Surveys were distributed at the annual Foster Parent Conference held in September 2004. Survey respondents were asked if they attend Administrative Reviews for children placed in their homes and if they expressed their views/concerns during the review. They were also asked to identify strengths and service gaps of their county's Child Welfare system and were asked about receiving certain types of services and their quality (e.g., information about child prior to placement, adequate training to meet the child(ren)'s special needs, prompt response to phone calls, monthly visits with the caseworker, etc.).

Survey respondents included only Foster Parents, who were asked to either return completed surveys at the conference or mail them in postage paid envelopes. In addition, the Foster Parent Association posted the ARD survey on their Web Page to get input from Foster Parents that were unable to attend the conference. Respondents were asked to specify the county in which they work most regularly so that county-specific information could be reported.

This report contains an executive summary of the data collected; aggregate/statewide data; and county specific data and comments.

Executive Summary

Forty-six surveys were completed. Each respondent submitting a completed survey at the Foster Parent Association Conference was given an ARD embossed coffee cup in appreciation of his or her time and feedback.

In addition to identifying their county, respondents were asked to specify whether they were a county foster parent, Child Protection Agency (CPA) foster parent, or "Other," for which one respondent specified "Lutheran Family Services" and another specified "nontraditional kinship." The largest proportion of surveys (25, 54%) was completed by county foster parents, followed by CPA foster parents (15, 32.6%), and respondents denoted as "other" (4, 8.7%). Two respondents (4%) did not specify the type of foster parent. Three counties had the largest proportion of respondents: Denver, Larimer and Weld, each having seven respondents and 15.2%. One respondent did not identify a county.

Overall, responses to the questions were positive and indicated that, in general, the foster parents that completed the survey find Administrative Reviews to be valuable. Moreover, many strengths of the county child welfare systems were noted. The following bullets present an overview for each question:

Question 1

- 91% (n=42) attend foster care/administrative reviews. A few respondents added comments to this question, which are presented under county-specific data.

Question 2

- 91% (n=42) said that they expressed their views/concerns during the review. Some respondents added comments to this question, which are presented under county-specific data.

Question 3

- Forty respondents identified strengths of their county's child welfare system. The most frequent remark noted caseworker excellence and focused on such casework qualities as effectiveness, accessibility, support, diligence, openness to input, and caring manner. Specific comments are presented county-specific data.

Question 4

- Of the 44 foster parents who responded to this question, 31 or 70.5% said that there were service gaps in the child welfare system in the county they work in most often. Frequently noted issues were inadequate funding/reimbursement, the need for more respite, and difficulty getting dental care and mental health treatment, especially for Medicaid cases. Specific comments are presented under county-specific data.

Question 5

- This question listed a series of services and aspects of services and asked respondents to indicate whether those services/aspects were provided. The services least likely to be received were, in order; pre-placement visits with the child to be placed in their home, contact with the child's guardian ad litem, and involvement in developing the case plan. This question also asked if respondents had ever been pressured to take a child. Ten (21.7%) said "yes." Responses are presented under county-specific data.

| Yes | 4 | 100.0 | 100.0 |

Question 3: Strengths of Child Welfare System in your county

| |
|---|
| |
| Adams County has a lot of excellent resources, but they are critically unorganized and failing all of its children due to bureaucratic maneuvering. |
| Communication with the system works ok, better than most. |
| They tell you everything they know about the children & bio family so it makes our job easier. |
| They treat me as a team member. |

| Missing | 1 | | |
| Total | 4 | | |

Question 4: Service Gaps in your county's Child Welfare System

| |
|---|
| |
| Because Adams County reimburses foster parents less than almost every other county, f.p. leave, which means more moves for foster children. |
| Problem solving, getting together in a staffing (monthly review) with caseworker, GAL, therapist, etc. to identify areas. |
| Yes!! Always lack of family therapy, supervisory/therapeutic visits!! |
