A Guide to Colorado Legal Resources for Native Americans

Of the approximately 44,200 Native Americans residing in the State of Colorado, more than 21,300 make their homes in the six county, (Adams, Arapahoe, Denver, Jefferson, Boulder and Douglas) metropolitan area. A historic migratory crossroads for numerous American Indian tribes and a former 1950's Bureau of Indian Affairs "Voluntary Relocation Center," Denver is often referred to as the "Hub of Indian Country." Unfortunately, the Native American population is one of the poorest, if not the poorest, in the state. The lack of financial resources is a major barrier to access to the justice system. This barrier is made even more formidable for Native Americans whose legal needs often involve complex, intertwined issues of federal, state and tribal law.

There has never been a formal study of the unmet legal needs of Native Americans which greatly hampers efforts to increase legal services to this population. Only anecdotal evidence exists of the systemic legal issues of pressing concern to the American Indian community. Out of concern for Colorado's Native American residents, a consortium of Native American service organizations, free legal service providers, the University of Colorado School of Law American Indian Law Clinic and Native American community representatives from the metro-Denver area, the "Colorado Native American Legal Needs Study Committee" ("Committee"), was established to investigate and recommend solutions for the unmet legal service needs. The initial member collaborating organizations of the Committee are: the Colorado Commission on Indian Affairs (Commissioners Ren Freeman and Stephen Moore, At Large Members and Karen Wilde-Rogers, Executive Secretary), Colorado Legal Services (Jon Asher, Executive Director), and the University of Colorado American Indian Law Clinic (Jill Tompkins, Director).

Before undertaking the study of unmet legal needs, the Committee believed that it was wise to create a directory of existing Colorado-based legal resources that are available and appropriate to meet the needs of Native Americans. It was thought that there is a communication gap between the legal service providers and the Native American community. There may be resources in existence that are not simply known to the potential users. Made possible through a generous grant from the Colorado Bar Foundation, and many hours of effort by University of Colorado School of Law student Stephanie Zehren Thomas, A Guide to Colorado Legal Resources for Native Americans was researched and compiled. Kelly Lohaus, Program Assistant for the Office of Clinical Programs, deserves much appreciation for her work in editing and formatting this publication.

A searchable, regularly updated version of the Guide is available on-line at: <http://www.colorado.edu/Law/clinics/ilc>. Please call (303) 492-0966 or e-mail us at indlaw@colorado.edu with any corrections or additions.

It is our hope that this Guide will provide valuable assistance to Native Americans in need of legal services in Colorado.

Denver, CO 80203
(303) 640-5132
www.cob.uscourts.gov (forms);
www.denbar.org (schedule)

The Denver Bar Association presents FREE informational clinics on bankruptcy for debtors. These clinics are designed for the pro se (do-it-yourself) litigant. They are intended to provide an OVERVIEW only. They will assist attendees in understanding the bankruptcy process and forms. Topics reviewed will include how bankruptcy can eliminate debts, the difference between Chapter 7 and Chapter 13, the effect on credit ratings and which forms are required for filing. Issues of creditor harassment, what a collection agency cannot say to you and how to fight back if you are harassed will also be addressed. The clinics WILL NOT provide explicit legal advice nor will they directly assist in completing forms. Volunteer attorneys cannot answer specific or detailed questions concerning unique individual circumstances, provide specific legal advice for individuals, or provide individual representation. Free. Clinics are held the 2nd Tuesday of each month from 1:30 - 3:00 p.m. For more information, call Carolyn Ferber or Kari Brandt at the Denver Bar Association at (303) 860-1115.

The Denver Bar Association sponsors these FREE informational clinics to teach people how to file their own small claims cases in court, and how to collect on the judgments. Tips include gathering information, forms (where to get them and how to complete them), filing (how and where), defending your position (what to do and not do), and court procedure. Collection clinics provide tips on how to collect your judgment. General questions are welcome but the clinics WILL NOT provide explicit legal advice nor will they directly assist in completing forms. Small Claims clinics are held on the 3rd Tuesday of each month. Collections Clinics are held on the 3rd Thursday of each month.

Family Tree, Inc., Women In Crisis

Betty House, Legal Advocacy

Supervisor
P.O. Box 1586
Arvada, CO 80001
(303) 271-6559

Provides advocacy, safe shelter, food, clothing, an on-site health clinic, individual and group support, legal advocacy, case management, community referrals, and children's programs for victims of domestic violence. Women In Crisis also provides domestic violence prevention and community education. A family law attorney and paralegal facilitate free legal clinics the first and third Wednesday of every month, with general information about divorce, custody, separation, and restraining orders. These free clinics are held at the Family Tree building at 3805 Marshall Street in Wheat ridge. The legal clinics are meant to provide GENERAL information only, and the attorney will not provide individual legal advice or representation. In addition, victims of domestic violence can attend Restraining Order Clinics at the Jefferson County Courthouse. The Restraining Order Clinics are held twice a day, Monday through Friday, at 9:00 a.m. and 1:00 p.m. in the Victim Witness Office of the Courthouse, which is located on the first floor. The Restraining Order Clinics are hosted by victim advocates from Family Tree, and will help victims understand the process for seeking a Temporary Restraining Order against an abuser. The victim advocates will assist victims in completing the legal forms for a Temporary Restraining Order, will accompany them through court to provide emotional support, and, once the Temporary Restraining Order is granted, will go with them to the sheriff's office to ensure that the TRO is served on the abuser. Victim advocates will also accompany victims to the Permanent Restraining Order hearing, if necessary. These victim advocates are NOT attorneys and CANNOT provide legal advice or representation. Free. 24-hour crisis line: (303) 420-6752.

Provides services for establishing and enforcing child support. Also provides services to locate absent, non-paying parents; establish paternity; establish medical support; and obtain child support modifications. It is important to know that the county CSE units do not represent individual families when they collect child support. The people from the CSE unit represent the interests of the state in both TANF and non-TANF cases. No attorney-client relationship or privilege exists. This means that the CSE unit is representing the interests of the state and not the interests of the individual who is seeking child support enforcement. Free if receiving TANF, one-time application fee of $20 if not. CSE units offer services to all applicants without income restrictions.

The Denver Bar Association presents FREE informational clinics on bankruptcy for debtors. These clinics are designed for the pro se (do-it-yourself) litigant. They are intended to provide an OVERVIEW only. They will assist attendees in understanding the bankruptcy process and forms. Topics reviewed will include how bankruptcy can eliminate debts, the difference between Chapter 7 and Chapter 13, the effect on credit ratings and which forms are required for filing. Issues of creditor harassment, what a collection agency cannot say to you and how to fight back if you are harassed will also be addressed. The clinics WILL NOT provide explicit legal advice nor will they directly assist in completing forms. Volunteer attorneys cannot answer specific or detailed questions concerning unique individual circumstances, provide specific legal advice for individuals, or provide individual representation. Free. Clinics are held the 2nd Tuesday of each month from 1:30 - 3:00 p.m. For more information, call Carolyn Ferber or Kari Brandt at the Denver Bar Association at (303) 860-1115.

Provides services for establishing and enforcing child support. Also provides services to locate absent, non-paying parents; establish paternity; establish medical support; and obtain child support modifications. It is important to know that the county CSE units do not represent individual families when they collect child support. The people from the CSE unit represent the interests of the state in both TANF and non-TANF cases. No attorney-client relationship or privilege exists. This means that the CSE unit is representing the interests of the state and not the interests of the individual who is seeking child support enforcement. Free if receiving TANF, one-time application fee of $20 if not. CSE units offer services to all applicants without income restrictions.

1437 Bannock Street
Denver, CO
(720) 865-8440
www.cob.uscourts.gov (forms);
www.denbar.org (Denver schedule)

Denver District Court Self-Help Centers, partnered with volunteer attorneys from the Denver Bar Association, offer these FREE informational clinics that provide an overview of the divorce process (with and without children) and related forms. Volunteer attorneys provide information on filing a divorce without the assistance of an attorney, and will cover divorce procedures and forms, child custody, child support, maintenance and property division. Participants should bring forms (available from the court and on the court website at www.courts.state.co.us). This clinic is INFORMATIONAL ONLY and, although questions are welcomed, answers will generally be confined to options that the individual may want to consider. These clinics DO NOT provide legal advice or representation nor do they directly assist in completing court forms. Free. Divorce Clinics are held in Denver County the 3rd Tuesday of each month from 12:00 - 1:30 p.m.

Provides advocacy, safe shelter, food, clothing, an on-site health clinic, individual and group support, legal advocacy, case management, community referrals, and children's programs for victims of domestic violence. Women In Crisis also provides domestic violence prevention and community education. A family law attorney and paralegal facilitate free legal clinics the first and third Wednesday of every month, with general information about divorce, custody, separation, and restraining orders. These free clinics are held at the Family Tree building at 3805 Marshall Street in Wheat ridge. The legal clinics are meant to provide GENERAL information only, and the attorney will not provide individual legal advice or representation. In addition, victims of domestic violence can attend Restraining Order Clinics at the Jefferson County Courthouse. The Restraining Order Clinics are held twice a day, Monday through Friday, at 9:00 a.m. and 1:00 p.m. in the Victim Witness Office of the Courthouse, which is located on the first floor. The Restraining Order Clinics are hosted by victim advocates from Family Tree, and will help victims understand the process for seeking a Temporary Restraining Order against an abuser. The victim advocates will assist victims in completing the legal forms for a Temporary Restraining Order, will accompany them through court to provide emotional support, and, once the Temporary Restraining Order is granted, will go with them to the sheriff's office to ensure that the TRO is served on the abuser. Victim advocates will also accompany victims to the Permanent Restraining Order hearing, if necessary. These victim advocates are NOT attorneys and CANNOT provide legal advice or representation. Free. 24-hour crisis line: (303) 420-6752.

The Colorado Civil Rights Division administers and enforces Colorado's civil rights laws in employment, housing, and public accommodations. The Colorado Revised Statutes (1988) prohibit discrimination in employment, housing and public accommodations based on race, sex, national origin, ancestry, disability, creed, color, marital status (housing and public accommodations), and familial status (housing only). Discrimination in employment based on age or marriage to a co-worker is also prohibited. The CCRD implements the civil rights statutes through administrative enforcement (compliance) and outreach (research and education). Most services are free. There is a $5 fee for copies of laws, rules, and regulations.

Provides advocacy, safe shelter, food, clothing, an on-site health clinic, individual and group support, legal advocacy, case management, community referrals, and children's programs for victims of domestic violence. Women In Crisis also provides domestic violence prevention and community education. A family law attorney and paralegal facilitate free legal clinics the first and third Wednesday of every month, with general information about divorce, custody, separation, and restraining orders. These free clinics are held at the Family Tree building at 3805 Marshall Street in Wheat ridge. The legal clinics are meant to provide GENERAL information only, and the attorney will not provide individual legal advice or representation. In addition, victims of domestic violence can attend

Restraining Order Clinics at the Jefferson County Courthouse. The Restraining Order Clinics are held twice a day, Monday through Friday, at 9:00 a.m. and 1:00 p.m. in the Victim Witness Office of the Courthouse, which is located on the first floor. The Restraining Order Clinics are hosted by victim advocates from Family Tree, and will help victims understand the process for seeking a Temporary Restraining Order against an abuser. The victim advocates will assist victims in completing the legal forms for a Temporary Restraining Order, will accompany them through court to provide emotional support, and, once the Temporary Restraining Order is granted, will go with them to the sheriff's office to ensure that the TRO is served on the abuser. Victim advocates will also accompany victims to the Permanent Restraining Order hearing, if necessary. These victim advocates are NOT attorneys and CANNOT provide legal advice or representation. The ACLU is a private, non-profit, pro bono provider that defends and protects the constitutional rights of all Americans. It provides legal counsel, works on legislation, and runs an educational program. If your constitutional rights have been violated, the intake officer will ask you to write a letter describing the situation. Your letter will be reviewed by the staff and a panel of attorneys. If the ACLU accepts your case, it will proceed on your behalf for free. Fee: None.

The Colorado Civil Rights Division administers and enforces Colorado's civil rights laws in employment, housing, and public accommodations. The Colorado Revised Statutes (1988) prohibit discrimination in employment, housing and public accommodations based on race, sex, national origin, ancestry, disability, creed, color, marital status (housing and public accommodations), and familial status (housing only). Discrimination in employment based on age or marriage to a co-worker is also prohibited. The CCRD implements the civil rights statutes through administrative enforcement (compliance) and outreach (research and education). Most services are free. There is a $5 fee for copies of laws, rules, and regulations.
